

Rod Willey

Rod Willey grew up locally, in Dover Foxcroft. He graduated from Foxcroft Academy in 1989, and went to college in the University of Maine System, graduating from UMaine Orono in 1998 with a BA in Anthropology. Through most of his time in college, he worked as a direct care staff with the Charlotte White Center in several sites: Abbot House, the Kingsbury Road Waiver Home, Winslow House, Farmer/Cross, Harrison House, as well as Children's Services.

Rod became the Resource Coordinator at CWC in 2003, and eventually moved into a Senior Management position in 2009. His role included managing all building and maintenance related matters, safety of both a physical and programmatic nature, and his truest love at CWC - training others in the art of peaceful conflict resolution and healthy relationship building.

In all, Rod worked on behalf of CWC's mission of service for nineteen years.

In the late summer of this year, Rod accepted the position of Executive Director at the Piscataquis Regional YMCA, and looks forward to every Wednesday, when he gets to see many of the people he knew at CWC as they come in for a swim or a workout.

Rod currently lives in Sangerville, where he and Heather raise their ten year old daughter, Meriel.
